Building a strong, successful legal case takes time and energy. Evidence must be carefully gathered and reviewed. Witnesses must be tracked down and interviewed. Experts are often consulted. The scene of an accident might even be examined. Some lawyers nickel and dime clients for their time. The Houston personal injury lawyers at Hagood & Neumann take a different approach. The firm works on a contingency fee basis. That means you pay nothing if you don't win.

Hagood & Neumann also realizes what a big decision it is to pick a Texas personal injury lawyer to handle your important legal needs. With that in mind, Hagood & Neumann offers a free case evaluation to all potential clients. That way, you can meet with them and get honest answers without worrying about how much every minute costs.

Being injured in a personal injury accident can be a traumatic experience. Someone else did something to cause your injury. You probably feel scared, vulnerable, and perhaps even angry. Allow Hagood & Neumann to help turn the tables. They can help you hold the people – or corporations – responsible for their negligent behavior.

You may think you don't need a lawyer. Your case might seem straightforward. Don't be so sure. Often, even the most seemingly simple legal cases can quickly become complicated. That's why it's critical you have a knowledgeable, experienced Texas personal injury lawyer driven to succeed on your side from the very beginning. Be careful not to let an insurance company string you along with empty promises while they are preparing their defense.
