

<http://www.h-nlaw.com/workplace-accidents/>

A Houston Workplace Accident Lawyer Who Is Ready to Help

Workplace accidents happen fast, but the impact can last a lifetime. In an instant, someone can lose the use of an arm or leg in an amputation accident. Other times, workplace injuries take years to develop, especially repetitive motion injuries common among factory and office workers.

Injuries are common in construction accidents and oil and gas accidents, but even people who work on computers all day or who stock shelves at grocery stores face a risk of injury. Injured Texans can pursue a workers compensation claim, but in some causes of workplace accidents can be traced back to a third party (someone other than the employer was responsible for the accident).

No matter what type of workplace injury you're dealing with, contact an experienced workplace accident lawyer. Talk to Hagood & Neumann. Learn about your rights from a no-nonsense, hard-working, results-driven Houston workplace injury lawyer serving clients in Houston, Galveston and throughout Texas. Hagood & Neumann is a law firm familiar with the common causes of workplace accidents and common workplace injuries. That's because they have been fighting for the rights of injured workers for more than three decades. They leave no stone unturned.

Hagood & Neumann also works with people injured in industrial accidents. Like construction accidents, industrial accidents often involve serious injuries. But there are many differences between such accidents from a legal standpoint. That's why it's critical you have an experienced, knowledge Texas industrial accident lawyer on your side, looking out for your best interests.

Common work injuries include:

- Burns
- Back, neck, shoulder, knee or arm injuries
- Heart attacks
- Bone fractures
- Carpal tunnel or other repetitive motion injuries

A Houston workplace accident lawyer who will work for you

You might think you don't need a lawyer if you're dealing with a workplace accident. Another individual or business clearly caused the accident. It should be an open and shut case. Don't be so sure. Often, complications come up. You need to make sure you have someone on your side looking out for your best interests. You need someone who knows how to deal with insurance companies and workplace accidents. You need someone who will fight for the compensation you need to cover the cost of your workplace injuries. Don't leave your future to chance.

This may be your only opportunity for justice. Seize it. Contact us today. Call (800) 632-9404 and schedule a free case evaluation. You probably have a lot of important questions. Get honest advice and straightforward answers from Hagood & Neumann, without having to worry about how much it costs.

Hagood & Neumann – a name you can trust to make things right.

A Houston Construction Accident Lawyer Can Help If You've Been Sidelined

Construction accidents involve some of the most serious workplace injuries in Texas and throughout America. What's more, construction workers have one of the most dangerous jobs in the country. According to the federal Bureau of Labor Statistics, 6.4 percent of construction laborers get injured on the job at some point

With so many people working in one place with so much heavy machinery, accidents are bound to happen.

But there's a difference between an accident and injury caused by someone else's reckless behavior. That's why many Texas construction accident victims can count on a Houston construction accident lawyer at Hagood & Neumann to make things right. The firm has dealt with many of the most common construction injuries. Hagood & Neumann understands the causes of construction accidents. From scaffolding collapses to forklift or crane accidents, Hagood & Neumann knows how to build strong construction accident cases designed to get people the money they rightfully deserve.

Common types of construction accidents and causes include:

- Crane accidents
- Electrocution
- Explosions and burns
- Falls from ladders and roofs
- Fires
- Holes in floors
- Lifting injuries
- Machinery and equipment defects
- OSHA violations
- Scaffolding collapse

You have many legal options you can explore for compensation after a construction accident. That's why it's critical you contact Hagood & Neumann as soon as possible after your accident. We have over 30 years of experience handling complicated construction accident cases in Houston, Galveston and throughout Texas. We're known throughout the state for our ability to obtain large, sometimes multi-million-dollar settlements and verdicts.

A Houston construction accident attorney who fights for victims

You might think you don't need a lawyer after your construction accident. Someone else clearly caused the accident. It should be an open and shut case. Don't be so sure. Often, complications come up, especially since there are often several companies working at the same construction site. You need to make sure you have someone on your side looking out for your best interests. You need someone who knows how to deal with insurance companies. You need someone who will fight for the compensation you need to cover the cost of your construction accident injuries. Don't leave your future to chance.

Serious construction accidents demand serious attention. Take back control. Contact Hagood & Neumann. Call (800) 632-9404 and schedule a free case evaluation. Best of all, if you choose to hire us, you pay us nothing if we don't win. That's because we work on a contingency fee basis. No tricks. No games. Just straightforward, honest legal advice from an experienced Galveston construction accident lawyer fighting for your rights.